

Choosing The Perfect Location When Booking A Canoeing Or Kayaking Holiday

The summer is here and people are now planning their holidays for when the children break up from school, with more and more people choosing to holiday in the UK this year due to the stunning weather at the moment. If you are looking for a slightly different holiday and want to hire a canoe or kayak, it is important to make sure you choose your location correctly, as different rivers and areas offer something slightly different dependant on where you go.

Below, we look at some top tips and advice when it comes to choosing the perfect place for your canoeing or kayaking holiday.

Location – The location can make or break a holiday or adventure break, so make sure you do your research correctly before travelling. Check out the Internet for reviews of the local area and about where you will be canoeing and also look at video sharing sites like YouTube to see others in action on the River. Some rivers or areas are harder than others and some locations in the country might not suit you due to distance or nearby attractions, or the lack of, so choose wisely and take some time considering where you are going to go.

Staff – When you hire a canoe or kayak, the staff at the place of hire are a very important resource of information, so make sure the company you hire from offer experienced and qualified instructors that know the river like the back of their hand. The information and guidance you can pick up from a well informed member of staff is critical for adventure trips and they can really help to make sure you have the perfect break away.

Expertise – Choose an area that suits your level of expertise when it comes to canoeing or kayaking. Some areas and rivers are notoriously harder than others, so if you are a novice make sure you pick somewhere that offers a steady canoeing experience, or if you are experienced you might want a location that offers you more of a challenge, so it's important to ask the question before you book.

Visitor Levels – An over crowded river can become a daunting and worrying place to be, especially if you are a novice or you do not like large groups of people in the same vicinity as you when canoeing. When booking your canoe hire break, you can always enquire about the level of visitors at that time of year, or you can always book outside of the traditionally busy periods, which are usually the school summer holidays and the Easter break if the weather is good.

Other Attractions – Although you might want to spend all of your time on the river, you will probably find that after a few days you will be eager to try something else as well. Even if it's just going to see a few local events or trying another adventure activity, it is important that you choose your vacation location correctly, to make sure that there are other things in the area. You can easily do this by using the Internet to search for the areas of interest and then seeing what else is readily available for you to do.
