

Website pair are keyed into growing business

Clear Web Services is the sponsor of the Retailer of the Year category in The Forester Business awards 2011. Over the past 12 months the company has grown, moved to new offices and is poised for further development in the year ahead.

CLEAR Web Services is an established and experienced web design consultancy that specialises in Search Engine Optimisation services, cost per click management, web design and online marketing. Also offered are email marketing management, social bookmarking opportunities and website analysis reviews.

The company is based in the Forest of Dean, but has clients ranging from locations in London to Edinburgh, with many different types of businesses and clients covering a wide range of services, from driving schools to wine investment. Clear Web Services can help any business realise its web needs.

Joint managing director Ian Spencer said: "Clear Web Services are delighted and honoured to be sponsoring one of the leading award categories at The Forester Business Awards 2011 for the second year running.

"The Retailer of the Year award is prestigious and important, as our whole community is built on the shops in our towns and we must try to support all local businesses.

"Last year was a real success for us and other local businesses that sponsored the awards and we hope that this year's event will be bigger and better for everyone who attends."

Clear Web Services works with many local and national clients who operate in diverse sectors of business. "We feel that our portfolio is proof that we can bring the correct solution to any company that needs a website, or whose present website is simply not performing" said Ian.

"From multi-million pound companies in Richmond and London through to locally-based businesses that are run from home, every client receives the same treatment from all of our team." Having worked in the industry for many years, normally for and on behalf of clients, Clear Web Services is the perfect partner to help move clients' businesses forward on the internet.

"Being a local company we provide a service that is with our clients every step of the way, with full phone support, on and off site meetings and comprehensive email support as well" said Ian, who has long experience in the SEO and web design industry, beginning his career with the leading overseas property portal, themovechannel.com.

"We have project managed some major websites and have continually worked with most of our clients for many years. "In the SEO industry, a long term relationship is the only way things can work, as continual progress can only be achieved by continued hard work and improvements".

Ian's views were echoed by joint managing director Will Smith, who said:

"We are delighted to be working with the Forester once again and to be sponsoring the awards."

"Last year was a really good event for the first ever awards and we found that being one of the sponsors really helped to spread the Clear Web Services message across the Forest, as we have now established ourselves as one of the leading IT firms in the area.

"This year has been a major year for growth, with a move to new offices, the expansion of the business and the foundations being laid for a much bigger year next year, with exciting details due to be announced in February about the future of the company."
